"Next month with the programs, so they're the first group supposed to come."
Ban Ki-moon, UN Secretary-General
"I heard that maybe 10,000 young people may use this facility."
44. SOUNDBITE: (Haitian Creole) Thenor Nikhols, Basketball Coach
"Since the earthquake, this place has been pretty much devastated, and people weren't aware of our existence here (the area is called Canaan – a new slum that has developed since the earthquake). This infrastructure will change those people's mentality. The people who live here thought that they had been forgotten, but now they have this infrastructure, this ability to train, and I think it is going to change a lot of things."
45. SOUNDBITE: (English) Ban Ki-moon, UN Secretary-General
"Above all, the key beneficiaries will be the young people of Haiti, as well as schools and communities. Youth will have a place to acquire skills and self-confidence, that will benefit themselves and their communities. People on the margins will have a place to belong again."
46. SOUNDBITE: (Haitian Creole) Michel Martelly, President of Haiti
"I think that this sports complex is in line with our thinking, which is to help a new society emerge."
47. SOUNDBITE: (French) Thomas Bach, President IOC
"Sport is very important for the cohesion of a society. And it can also contribute a lot to the education of our youth, and that is what this centre represents."
48. SOUNDBITE: (English) Thomas Bach, President IOC
"The United Nations and the IOC have just signed a very historic agreement that we will even reinforce our cooperation for peace, we will work for the many millions of refugees in this world and we will work together when it comes to health and when it comes to education through sport for the youth of the world."
49. SOUNDBITE: (English) Thomas Bach, President IOC

"This centre is a real clear sign of hope for Haiti and for the young people because sport stands for social cohesion, stands for self-confidence, stands for fair play and for the future of the youth.
