Ladies' 500m

The final results for the 500m event are based on the total time of two 500m races skated on the same day.

Skaters compete in pairs. One starts in the inner lane while the other starts in the outer lane. The skaters change lanes at the crossing straight (opposite to the finishing straight) after every lap. Skaters swap starting lanes in the second race.

The skater with the best combined time wins the competition; there is no elimination phase.

What are the YOG?

They also exemplify the Fundamental Principles of Olympism, blending sport with culture and education.
