Q. What will the IOC do to help these athletes prepare for these competitions?

“We will help them to participate in international competitions and if they want also to have training camps outside the country and competitions so that they can gather as much international experience as possible and to be then perfectly prepared to participate in the Olympic Games and maybe, like the table tennis players, winning medals in the Olympic Games. I think this would be the greatest experience for these athletes.”

Q. It has been a month since the PyeongChang Winter Olympic Games, what was your greatest memory and what was achieved there?

“My greatest memory is the joint march. When I saw the athletes from DPRK coming into the stadium together with the athletes from ROK, this really gave me goosebumps and gives me still goosebumps today even when only talking about it. I think this was a great moment in Olympic history and paved the way as we could see now for more peace talks on the political level, and this makes us very happy.”
